1. Where to Start

If you are not sure what kind of help you need, start identifying whether the issue is legal, health-related, safety-related, financial, or social-service related.

- For legal advice, contact a lawyer pertaining to the type of legal help you need, Legal Aid Saskatchewan, or an appropriate legal service provider.
- For public legal information, use official government, court, or public legal education resources.

- For mental health or addictions support, contact a crisis line, health service, or community support organization.
- For immigration-related issues, contact the IRCC Client Support Centre for general immigration and visas. For SINP-related inquiries, contact the provincial government directly.
- For problems regarding employment, contact the Employment Standards Division and Occupational Health and Safety.
- For immediate danger, call 911.

2. Legal Aid and Legal Information

What is Legal Aid?

Legal aid is a government-funded program that provides free or low-cost legal services to low-income individuals. Therefore, Legal Aid may be available depending on income, type of legal issue, and eligibility requirements.

Legal aid may assist where your fundamental rights, safety, or liberty are at risk and you meet low-income financial requirements, and may assist with certain cases such as family disputes, child custody, child welfare, criminal, and domestic abuse. Other cases include serious criminal charges, especially those with a risk of jail time, and immigration/refugee claims. Furthermore, civil issues, and mental health hearings or housing. Readers should contact Legal Aid directly to confirm whether they qualify.

Name: Legal Aid Saskatchewan (Yorkton)

Address: 120 Smith St E, Yorkton, SK S3N 3V3

Phone: (306) 786-1440

Website: <https://legalaidsk.ca/>

Legal Aid Saskatchewan specifically provides free or low-cost criminal and family legal services to financially eligible residents who cannot afford private lawyers. To be officially qualified for representation, you must pass a financial test but as a general trend, those receiving social or disability assistance typically qualify.

If you earn too much for Legal Aid but still cannot afford a private lawyer's hourly rates, Pro Bono Law Saskatchewan (PBLs) may be another option to explore. They run free legal clinics where volunteer lawyers provide up to one hour of free legal advice. For rural access, they offer phone appointments for rural residents anywhere in the province.

Call: 1-855-833-7257

- Wait times are typically 3-6 weeks.

3. Finding a Lawyer

Disclaimer: This guide does not recommend specific lawyers or law firms, as the purpose of this guide is simply to provide public information and a guide on where to start to make informed decisions. If you need legal advice about your specific situation, you should contact a licensed lawyer or another qualified legal professional.

Official Lawyer Directory

Law Society of Saskatchewan — Find Legal Assistance Directory

This directory helps members of the public search for licensed legal professionals in Saskatchewan. This directory listing is best for finding legal professionals in Saskatchewan. Users may be able to search by location, area of law, language, service model, or payment options.

It is important that this directory listing does not mean that any lawyer is recommended or endorsed by this guide.

Website: <https://www.lawsociety.sk.ca/>

Questions to Consider Before Contacting a Legal Professional or a Lawyer:

- What kind of legal issue do I need help with?
- Do I need legal advice, or am I only looking for general legal information?
- Can I afford a private lawyer, or should I look into Legal Aid Saskatchewan or other alternatives?
- Have I checked that the lawyer or legal professional is licensed through an official directory?
- Do I need help in a specific language?

Questions You May Want to Ask a Lawyer:

- Do you handle this type of legal issue?
- Do you offer phone or virtual consultations?
- Is there a consultation fee?
- What are your fees or payment options?
- Do you accept Legal Aid certificates, if applicable?
- What documents should I prepare before speaking with you?

4. Court and Government Resources

Saskatchewan's judicial system consists of three levels: the Provincial Court (handles criminal, traffic, and small claims), the Court of King's Bench (handles severe criminal, civil, and family law trials), and the Court of Appeal (reviews decisions). For more information, you can find it on the official Courts of Saskatchewan website: <https://sasklawcourts.ca/>

The Provincial Court of Saskatchewan handles the majority of criminal, youth, traffic, and municipal bylaw cases, as well as civil small claims up to $50,000. The primary offices are in major centres across the province.

- Regina: 1815 Smith Street | (306) 787-5219
- Saskatoon: 220 4th Avenue South | (306) 933-5121
- Prince Albert: 1800 1st Avenue West | (306) 953-3202
- Moose Jaw: 110 Ominica Street West | (306) 694-3612
- Swift Current: 121 Lorne Street West | (306) 778-8255
- Yorkton: 120 2nd Avenue North | (306) 786-1400

5. Family Law and Safety Resources

For family law in Saskatchewan, they cover issues such as divorce, separation, child/spousal support, and property division. However, mandatory Early Family Dispute Resolution is required before going to court. You can access free resources, forms, and legal coaching through the Family Law Information Centre (FLIC) by calling 1-888-218-2822.

The Family Law Saskatchewan portal has additional information about the Public Legal Education Association (PLEA), which provides plain-language information regarding legal rights, obligations, and court procedures.

For child support services, the Saskatchewan Child Support Service (CSS) provides an administrative, free, and out-of-court process to calculate or adjust child support payments, bypassing the formal court system. They use the federal tables and current tax data to proceed, as well as the payor's most recent tax filings or employer-reported income. There are more eligibility requirements that can be found here: <https://www.saskatchewan.ca/residents/family-and-social-support/child-support/child-support-recalculation-service>

To reach their program, you can call them at (306) 787-5042 (a toll-free number at 1-833-825-1445) or via email: childsupportservice@gov.sk.ca

Importantly, if you or someone you know is in immediate danger, call 9-1-1, and if a 911 service does not exist in your area, call the local police emergency number.

For victims of family violence or survivors of any crime, contact the Victim Services Directory if you need further guidance, as this is an online database that connects victims with local support programs, emotional counseling, crisis intervention, and legal assistance. They also have 24/7 crisis navigation support, which allows them to help you find nearby shelters, helplines and food.

6. Mental Health and Addictions Supports

For immediate emergencies, call 911 or go to the nearest emergency room. For non-emergency crises, mental health or addiction support in Saskatchewan, call 811 for 24/7 professional health advice or dial 211 to connect with community resources.

Suicide Prevention: Call or text 988 for the 24/7 Suicide Crisis Helpline.

Kids Help Phone: 1-800-668-6868

Minors can text 686868

Adults can text 741741

Kids Help Phone is Canada's only national, 24/7 e-mental health service offering free, confidential, and multilingual support for youths. You are able to connect to professional counsellors or trained volunteer crisis responders via phone, text, or live chat to talk about anything.

Indigenous Support: 1-855-242-3310

This is a 24/7 Hope for Wellness Hotline with telephone support available in English, French, Cree, Ojibway, and Inuktitut.

Specifically in Yorkton and the surrounding Parkland region, there are several dedicated crisis, shelter, and rapid-access mental health services tailored to the local community.

- Mobile Integrated Health Program (Withdrawal Management): 1-306-620-6613

This service delivers mobile withdrawal and helps with substance-use stabilization directly to individuals within Yorkton from 9:00AM to 9:00PM, seven days a week.

- Mental Health and Addiction Services Intake: 1-888-989-8444 or 1-306-786-0558

This is the central hub for the Saskatchewan Health Authority in the area, providing access to therapy, detox management, individual counselling, and inpatient stabilization at the Yorkton Regional Health Centre.

For alcohol and drug services, there are six main types of services provided in Saskatchewan. Visit here for more information: <https://www.saskatchewan.ca/residents/health/accessing-health-care-services/mental-health-and-addictions-support-services/addictions-treatment>

7. Newcomer and Immigration-Related Supports

There are several places you can contact based on what kind of immigration-related issues or inquiries you are dealing with.

For general questions about checking your application status, or resolving technical account issues, contact the IRCC Client Support Centre. For questions regarding the Saskatchewan Immigrant Nominee Program (SINP), contact the provincial level by the Government of Saskatchewan, rather than federal IRCC agents.

IRCC Client Support Centre: Call 1-888-242-2100

If calling is inconvenient, you can submit an enquiry 24/7 through the official IRCC Webform to update your application details, ask questions, or upload documents.

Lines are incredibly busy, so it is ideal to call at around 8:00AM local time, right as they open. Be prepared to call several times in a row to get placed into the hold queue and have your Unique Client Identifier (UCI) number ready.

IRCC agents can usually tell you if documents were received, explain general program requirements, and troubleshoot online account glitches, but they cannot speed up your application processing, make decisions on your file, or give you legal immigration advice.

Government of Saskatchewan: Call 1-833-613-0485 (Toll-Free in North America)

Email: immigration@gov.sk.ca for inquiries

If you are an employer reporting technical issues or other issues, email employerservices@gov.sk.ca

Local Immigration Assistance in Yorkton:

The East Central Newcomer Welcome Centre can provide invaluable assistance with understanding regional job markets, navigating the Saskatchewan Expression of Interest (EOI) system, and gathering mandatory community or settlement documents. Although based in Yorkton, they serve a vast 150-kilometre radius covering smaller towns across the region.

Mobile Satellite Offices: Settlement staff frequently travel to smaller towns, specifically to municipal buildings. For example, holding client clinics at the Moosomin Town Office.

Remote Support: Newcomers living in smaller surrounding communities such as Melville, Esterhazy, Canora, Kamsack, and Langenburg can access the same document translation, housing orientations, and other benefits remotely via phone, Zoom, or email.

Phone Number: (306) 783-2777

Email: ecnwcinfo@ecnwc.ca

Website: <https://eastcentralnewcomercentre.ca/>

Settlement Workers in Schools (SWIS):

If you move to a smaller rural community with children, you do not need to drive to Yorkton for help. The Newcomer Welcome Centre operates SWIS programs where dedicated mobile advisors work directly within rural school divisions to help immigrant families integrate into local school networks right where they live.

If your rural community is further away from the Yorkton zone, your town falls under a different designated Regional Newcomer Gateway. Each of these main hubs handles all the smaller surrounding villages.

Language Support in Yorkton:

Language support is split into two types: formal English classes to help you stay in Canada, and interpretation/translation services to help you handle daily tasks.

1. Free English Classes (LINC & ESL)

This is best for those needing to improve their English proficiency for work, citizenship, or permanent residency.

- Suncrest College (must have your English level assessed)
- Language Instruction for Newcomers to Canada (LINC)

2. Document Translation and Interpretation

When dealing with official applications, health care, or legal matters and need support due to language barriers.

- Official Document Translation: The Newcomer Centre

- Interpretation Support: The Newcomer Centre

Additionally, The Newcomer Centre frequently hosts informal “English Conversation Circles” and community matching programs, allowing for casual practice in a relaxed setting.

The Official “IRCC Rules” to Spot a Fraud

- Demands alternative payment: Legitimate fees are never paid using cryptocurrency, gift cards, prepaid credit cards, Western Union, or personal bank transfers.
- Uses a non-government email: Official IRCC communications will arrive from an address ending strictly in .gc.ca
- Pressures you to act: Intentional messages causing panic to rush your judgement before you can verify facts
- Reaches out of the blue: IRCC will never call you unprompted to sell immigration packages or offer special, time-limited processing deals.

8. Housing, Employment, and Basic Rights Resources

Housing and Tenant Information

For rental disputes, legal rights, and financial assistance:

- The Office of Residential Tenancies (ORT): <https://www.saskatchewan.ca/business/housing-development-construction-and-property-management/landlords-and-rental-properties>

Use the ORT Portal to understand rules on security deposits, evictions, and rent increases.

- Saskatchewan Housing Corporation (SHC): Government-funded programs offering rental benefits. You can, furthermore, explore SHC Housing Programs guide to check eligibility for the monthly Saskatchewan Housing Benefit.

Call: 1-800-667-7567

- Saskatchewan Housing Benefit: You can apply for the month Saskatchewan Housing Benefit to lower your costs. This direct funding is tied to your income rather than your location.

Call: 1-844-787-4177

- Local Yorkton Support: Visit SIGN Housing Support (Society for the Involvement of Good Neighbours) or look through the SIGN Yorkton Housing Portal for local emergency shelter placements and hard-to-house advocacy resources.

Employment Laws and Job Search Tools

For information regarding wages, working hours, and finding work:

- Saskatchewan Employment Standards: Review the Employment Standards Guide to read rules surrounding minimum wage, overtime pay, statutory holidays, and termination notice rules. <https://www.saskatchewan.ca/business/employment-standards>
- SaskJobs: The government’s SaskJobs Portal <https://www.saskjobs.ca/> to find open employment listings in your area.

In Yorkton, for in-person job training and resume assistance, visit the provincial Yorkton Service Centre. If you cannot visit the SaskJobs Career Services Office in Yorkton, you can work with a remote career professional over the phone at 1-833-613-0485 or email careerservices@gov.sk.ca

- National Job Bank (Rural Filter): The federal Canada Job Bank has a designated sub-filter specifically targeting rural communities and smaller agricultural operations.

Legal Protections for Newcomer Job Seekers: Under The Saskatchewan Employment Act, no person or recruitment agency can charge you money to find you a job or an employer. Employers pay recruiters; job seekers never do.

If an employer has violated your rights, there are ways to deal with this remotely as well.

- Employment Standards Inquiry Line: A centralized provincial helpline at 1-800-667-1783 or email employmentstandards@gov.sk.ca

They will guide you through your rights regarding hours of work, breaks, and final pay cheques.

- The Online Complaint Portal: A digital Employment Standards Complaint Form where a provincial officer may investigate your rural workplace remotely, inspect your employer's pay records, and legally enforce any missing back-pay on your behalf.

<https://www.saskatchewan.ca/business/employment-standards/complaints-investigations-enforcement-and-fines/file-an-employment-standards-complaint/make-a-formal-employment-standards-complaint>

Human and Basic Rights Resources

To protect yourself against discrimination or illegal treatment at work or in housing:

- Saskatchewan Human Rights Commission (SHRC): Protects you against illegal discrimination based on race, religion, nationality, age, marital status, etc.

SHRC Rights Path Handbook: <https://saskhrc.ca/wp-content/uploads/2020/03/TheRightsPath.pdf>

Landlords and Housing Discrimination Sheet: https://saskatchewanhumanrights.ca/wp-content/uploads/2021/02/SHRC_Landlord-Tenants-and-Housing-Information-Sheet.pdf

- Filing a Human Rights Complaint: If you believe that your rights have been violated, you can contact the SHRC directly at 1-800-667-9249 or view the online SHRC Complaint Process Guide <https://saskhrc.ca/education-resources/information-sheets/>
